Daffodils are Harvested at River's Edge Farm

Reprinted from the Richmond Times-Dispatch, April 1, 1951

Mrs. Selina Hopkins, of River's Edge Flower Farm admires a bunch of her choice daffodils gathered from one of her fields.

BY-HAMILTON CROCKFORD  Times-Dispatch Staff Writer

NUTTALL, VA., March 31-Mrs. Selina L. Hopkins just about abandoned housekeeping a couple of weeks ago and took to gath ring posies. Lunch will continue to be irregular or missing for three weeks yet.
It wasn't simply a walkout, or just Spring fever - although that had something to do with it

The daffodils had it. Here in Gloucester County they were bursting into bloom again. (The daffodil show at Gloucester is on today and tomorrow.)

Everybodv in Gloucester County has a daffodil patch. Mrs. Hopkins has some 15 acres of them.

Bread and Beauty

And since they supply her table with bread as well as beauty, picking posies in March for her has only an incidental resemblance to gathering nuts in May.
So, beauty being fragile, business on her "River's Edge" flower farm here, a couple of miles east of the courthouse, is bustling these dayseverywhere except the kitchen.

Every clear morning the pickers show up at her fields. Every afternoon a truck shows up at her packing house for a shipment to go somewhere.
And every day, all day, an elderly widow turned business woman gets about to all corners of the place to supervise the operations from picking to packing.
If it's a frosty morning, the daffodils will have their heads down, and there's no picking then. But when they look up and dance in glee like Wordsworth's, beside the North River here the nimble-fingered pickers must move fast.

Money for Pickers

[There's money in it for the pickers, while it lasts, at 2 cents per bunch of a dozen, 25 bunches to the basket, and some people picking 20 baskets in a day's working time, the owner observed.]

The job must be done by noon, if possible, Mrs. Hopkins noted, to leave enough time for cooling the flowers to stiffen their stems, and for packing before the truck comes. She drives her car out into the fields to direct the work.

The baskots go into troughs of of water to stav until the stems are "cool to the hand." Then the packers take over, gently placing them 30,36 or 50 bunches to the box, according to the size of the flower variety, and bracing it to be sure the blossoms don't bruise.

While this is going on, the phone may be ringing with a long distance order from somewhere, and Mrs. Hopkins will be off into the house to take it.

A daily broadcast of prices in New York is also "must" listening for her or her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hammer, who live with her, and grow more daffodils of their own.

Market Perishable

The market can be as perishable as a daffodil, if there's a temporary glut in one place: The New York price dropped from 50 cents a dozen on a Saturday to 10 cents by the next Thursday, they noted. They shifted destinations accordingly, just before truck time.

Mrs. Hopkins, who moves unruffled through this melee, got into flower farming on her own rather later than most.
An aunt of actress Katherine Hepburn, she was born Selina Hepburn, the daughter of a Hanover County Episcopal minister, in 1878, and marrried N. S. Hopkins in 1900.
From general farming on his family's old place here, "Waverly," first owned by Philip Edward Tabb, he went into bulb growing seriously about 1922. He developed a couple of varieties himself. Meanwhile, Mrs. Hopkins observed with a smile, genealogy and Gloucester County history were her chief occupations.
But when her husband died in 1937, and her four children wondered what she ought to do, she decided simoly. "It was the only living I had," she said. She turned to daffodils.

She'll be 73 on April 9, but it's easy to agree with her own summing up, that "getting outdoors with the flowers agreed with me."
She sells a dozen or so commercial varieties and a few boxes each year of an estimated 100 other varieties.
And while she'll be getting back to a little more housekeeping after about April 20 , she won't tarry long

at a time.

Has Bulb Trade

She's worked up a bulb trade, too, and does about as much business selling the increase of her bulbs in the Fall as selling flowers in Spring. Selling only to home gardeners and florists rather than large wholesalers, she's shipped them now to every State except Montana, she said. (Everything goes out with a tag noting the bulbs were state-inspected and found free of the plaguish ellworm and narcissus bulb fly. Hammer pointed out.) And she "grades bulbs with the boys all summer."
They have to be dug every one to four years, she noted, and where they grew the fields must be planted alternately to soybeans and Winter clover, sometimes for two years, and these turned under, until the ground is right for bulbs again.
After cleaning, drying, chemical treating and curing, the bulbs for replanting go back in the ground from September to Christmas. It's a yearround business.
"The only time I get any peace at all is when I get them all patted down in the ground in the Winter," Selina Hopkins said,-"And then I have to work on my income tax.
But she was smiling at a cluster of her "Magnificence" when she said it.

Our Customers Say:

Warren, Ohio

Dear Mrs. Hopkins:
The bulbs 1 planted last year were the talk of the neighborhood. We did not move into our new house until December 14, and because the grading was not completed I had to tuck the bulbs here and there wherever I could find a few feet of "digable" soil (after the contractors had deposited their usual debrist). What a surprise my spring show was to everyone-myself included! They were beautiful blossoms in spite of the adverse circumstances under which they were planted. Please send the following order for more . . . . . . .

Very truly yours,
Mrs. Edward C. Fales.

Gentlemen:

A neighbor of mine tells me she orders blubs from you and finds them most reasonable, true to type, etc. . . . She says you have special bargain collections at times, and I would be interested in these.

Yours truly,
(Miss) Sallie Kate Davidson.

Dear Mrs. Hopkins:
1 am enclosing check for $$ 5.45$ for River's Edge Novelty Mixture daffodils. Last year I ordered your Gloucester County Special and they were beautiful. Enjoyed them thoroughly.

Very truly yours,
Ann E. Greer.
"Enioyed the daffodil bulbs of last year. They were very lovely. My place is rather large, so am planting more this year." Mrs. J. Sam Hale, Floydada, Texas.
"I want to tell you how much I have enjoyed the daffodils from the bulbs 1 bought from you. Most of them had at least two blooms. And the Red Emperor fulips have been the admiration and envy of the neighborhood! The Zwanenburg fulips were as fine as any I ever saw.'

Miss Olive Bagby, Stephensville, Va.

Dear Friends and Gardeners:

Thirty years ago this spring my husband and I picked flowers off our first planting of large modern daffodils. (We had previously picked and shipped to Baltimore by boat old-fashioned Early Virginia or Trumpet Major jonquils from naturalized plantings.) Since then our original stocks of 1500 King Alfred and 500 . Olympia bulbs have multiplied into many tons.

I am glad to be able to offer my customers bulbs from these same exceptionally vigorous stocks which became acclimated to conditions in this country and reproduced so phenomenally for us. (So phenomenally that I have sold over forty tons of King Alfred bulbs and still have a growing stock of fifteen tons left from our original 1500 bulbs.)

Starting out with our healthy, state certified daffodil bulbs, success in growing them is practically assured. Moles, mice, thrip, and other common flower and plant pests do not attack them, due to some protective substance in daffodil bulbs which makes them unpalatable. The bulbs we sell are of blooming size, which means the blooms are already formed in miniature in the bulbs when you receive them.

There are thousands of named varieties of daffodils. These have myriad sizes, shapes, and colors. The average gardener can aspire to own perhaps 50 to 100 of these. If you buy a few varieties each year, you will be surprised in what a short time you can assemble a very fine and interesting collection of varieties.

Daffodils lend themselves very well to creative landscaping. "Naturalized" informally-sowed by handfuls and planted where they fall-they create beauty in early spring on hillsides, in meadows or vacant lots, by lakes, or in light woods. For naturalizing we suggest our bulbs as sold by the bushel or peck. Our mixtures give a succession of bloom over a period of four to six weeks."
